The Andrew Croft Award for Art

Jasmine Chow

Jasmine's artistic journey through school has been an epic one, and it has been a pleasure to watch her grow in confidence and skill as she has made her way through sixth form. Both components in year 13 have had the female form as a focus. In component one she explored the use of flowers as metaphors for womankind, and in component two, the concept of isolation, dealing with positive and negative space within her compositions.

Jasmine is going on to study art and design and we wish her every success as she continues to blossom and grow as a young artist, making sense of the work around her as she goes.

The Dewhirst Prize for Graphics

Phoebe Kerfoot

Phoebe is an incredibly focussed hard working student who is committed to producing work of a consistently high standard. Phoebe uses her ability to combine excellent drawing skills with intelligent graphic design and ICT skills to produce quality outcomes. Phoebe's portfolio reflects her creative ability; she has completed a range of ambitious projects which show great attention to detail, precision and quality of finish. I am confident that Phoebe's mature attitude and commitment to work will ensure future success in her chosen career. Well done Phoebe, always push yourself, takes risks, never stop being creative.

Geography Award

Daisy Ulliyott

Daisy has excelled in this course over the last 2 years. She possesses an inquisitive mind and a desire to always excel in all that she partakes in. Daisy has mastered the art of 'thinking like a geographer' and tries to consider how actions may have an impact in the future. During lessons Daisy has always tried to consider the opinions of others and use these to help support or counter her own responses. The responses are multi-faceted and reflect the changing social, cultural and political landscape.

Daisy has been an incredible asset to the class and sixth form and the school, always wearing a smile on her face no matter how challenging the day ahead, the complexity of the lessons being taught. Good luck for the future Daisy and I look forward to hearing all the great things you are achieving in the future.

Photography Awards

Emma Flintoft

This course has been new to Emma and she has taken to it with such ease and interest, she is what you might call "a natural", she certainly has a natural eye for composition. But more than that, Emma has the work ethic that means she strives to learn, to be better, to be great, and she does that. We have been blown away by her work through the two year course and we are thrilled that she wishes to pursue her talent and interest in this subject to study fashion photography at university, bringing her two passions together. Emma has a gentle and subtle approach to her work, seeing human beings as the sensitive, yet strong beings that they are, which is exactly what Emma is too.

All the very best with your future studies and exciting career beyond that, as photography takes you across the world.

Angela Craven

Angela has gone from strength to strength this year in Photography. She has astounded us with her brilliant work ethic, her wide range of ideas, her passion and creativity and not to mention her stunning photography and film work. This year she has completed two components. The first dealing with "loneliness", accompanied by a beautifully written essay exploring this concept, as well as poetic descriptions of other photographer's work as well as her own. The second more broadly explored "connected images" metaphorically and practically within the presentation and execution of her work, using landscape and portraiture, as well as more surreal connected images. She has an artistic soul bursting with a desire to create and I am sure this will continue to flourish as she ventures forth into the world.

The Christie Award for Modern Languages: French

Cerys Johnson

Cerys is an extremely well-organised, intelligent and hard-working student. She never settles for second best and is always eager to improve her work and act upon advice offered. Her dedicated, enthusiastic and mature approach to her work will stand her in good stead for the future. It has been a real pleasure to teach Cerys and to see how much she has progressed during the course. She will be going to Huddersfield to study Physio, which will be an amazing experience for her as she is always open-minded and willing to make the most of every opportunity. We wish her well for the future. Bonne chance Cerys!

The Christie Award for Modern Languages: Spanish

Emma Palmer

Emma has always strived to achieve highly in Spanish and has risen to any challenges that have presented themselves, namely Spanish grammar and the multitude of tenses and moods she has studied along the way. Emma has always approached Spanish with positivity and dedication and we wish her every success and happiness in the future.

¡Qué tengas mucho éxito en el futuro!

Business Award

Freddie Harrold

Freddie has proven himself to be a very talented student within the subject area of Business. Both his quest for knowledge and enthusiasm towards the subject have been evident and ever present throughout his time in Sixth Form. Freddie's own inquisitive nature has led him to independently keep abreast of not only what is happening in the UK Economy but also the World Economy beyond, and this has undoubtedly helped him to do well in the subject. He has been able to successfully gather, understand, digest and interpret the masses of information and opinion that exist around the subject and successfully arrive at his own well-formed and rounded conclusions. This stands Freddie in very good stead for whatever path he chooses to follow after Sixth Form.

Freddie has been a pleasure to get to know, to teach, and has proven to be a real asset to the class and his classmates. I have no doubt that Freddie will be very successful in his A level results, beyond that in his Further Studies and most likely in whatever he turns his mind to thereafter. I would like to thank Freddie for enhancing my teaching as well as his peers learning and sincerely wish him the very best for the future.

ICT Award

Charlotte Ellis

Charlotte has proven herself to be a model student in and around the classroom. Charlotte is constantly helping other members of the group and making sure that they know what to do and where to be. She even makes phone calls to other members of the group to ask where they are in the build up to a lesson if she thinks they are likely to be late. Charlotte is consistently searching for knowledge and her enthusiasm towards the subject has been evident in every lesson. She has been almost ever present throughout the time that I have been teaching her.

Another reason why Charlotte is being nominated is that I have been impressed with her additional effort in making sure that she has as much knowledge as possible in preparation for the exam. She is very pro-active in this regard and has usually learnt topics ahead of time, completing revision so she knows some of the answers before the questions have even been asked!

I would like to finish by saying that Charlotte has been a pleasure to get to know, to teach, and has proven to be a real asset to her classmates. I have no doubt that Charlotte will be very successful in her A level results and in her future.

All the best Charlotte!

The Ross Weekes & Jim Yates Awards for History

Jennifer Peacock

Jennifer started her Year 12 History studies with no History GCSE background. To say the History Team were apprehensive is a fair statement. Jennifer proved us all wrong. Over the past two years, her sheer determination and grit has helped her hold her own with those who have studied it for longer and she steadily pushed herself above and beyond expectations. Her oral articulation surpasses others and she always has a really compelling argument to make. Jennifer established herself in the class as a thoughtful and industrious individual. It has been a pleasure to watch her transform from a shy and quiet individual, to one who feels comfortable in asserting her place in the historical world. Well done Jennifer - you thoroughly deserve this award.

Adam Sanders

Adam has been a steadfast member of both the GCSE and A Level History family. Nothing has been too much trouble for him and he has always been in lesson come rain or shine. He has always been extremely hard working and has consistently applied all advice given by staff to ensure that he continued to gain improved outcomes. This increasing self-confidence has resulted in the commensurate improvement in his work. It has been satisfying to watch him grow into an assured young man, who is not afraid to speak his opinion. Not only has Adam been a committed student but he has always been a polite and well-mannered person as well as everything else. Thank you Adam for all your effort.

Psychology Awards

Angela Craven

The award for psychology this year must have been one of the most hotly contested and debated awards due to the number of high-quality students studying the subject. Angela has always been one of our quietest students, never to make a fuss, never to shout the odds, never to show-off her talents, yet Angela has always engaged in the subject asking and answering questions and encouraging those around her and she has done this with a ready smile and a sense of fun. We have seen Angela grow in her psychological knowledge and abilities, which is largely down to her own hard work and determination. She is the type of student that all teachers would like to have in their classes attentive, studious and interested. It is these qualities that were considered during our long discussion about this specific award. It is these qualities that have undoubtedly enabled Angela to progress the way that she has over the two year course. It is these qualities that will enable Angela to succeed in her chosen career path.

It would not be correct if Mr Reeves did not get one last chance to mispronounce her name (it started in year 7, carried over for two years at GCSE and continued into the sixth form. She had a little break in years 8 and 9) ... she will always be affectionately remembered as Angell-a. We wish her all the best as she leaves us and brightens other people's lives.

Hannah Edeson

We have had the great pleasure of being Hannah's teachers through GCSE and A Levels for the last 4 years. Hannah is a model A Level student who has a 'can do' attitude and has demonstrated a very strong work ethic. She has a personality which is tailor made for both the social elements of life and her academia. In Hannah's desire to succeed she has put in huge amount of extra work outside of the classroom and is highly driven to be the best that she can be. She demonstrates these traits by being determined, focused and charismatic. Hannah is highly skilled at evaluating Psychological research and integrating issues, approaches and debates into her answers and we struggle to take marks off her. When asked to do one question Hannah will do three and this is what makes Hannah very special that she always goes 'the extra mile'. Hannah whilst quiet in nature more than makes up for it in her exemplary written communication skills; these are demonstrated regularly in the classroom and with her work from home. Hannah is so driven and just gets on with what she needs to do in order to achieve her potential and then some. Hannah has all the qualities to be a success in anything she puts her mind to. We wish her all the best in the future as it is very bright!! Congratulations you thoroughly deserve the Psychology award.

English Literature Award

Bev Arnett

Bev is a truly deserving winner of this award. In addition to being an extremely talented and enthusiastic student of English Literature, Beverley's organisation, independent learning and collaborative working skills are second to none. She is consistently generous with her time in supporting and encouraging her peers and frequently places the learning needs of others before her own. Bev consistently approaches all learning in a positive and resilient manner. Her cheerful disposition is infectious and I would challenge anyone who spends time engaging in academic discussion with such a personable young lady not to be drawn into delightful debate. In short, Bev stands out as someone whom everyone on the course looks up to and whom many aspire to be like.

English Language Award

Steve Ibbetson

We have nominated Steve for the A2 English Language Award because of his aptitude and instinctive skills for the subject. Steve is gifted at English Language. Right from the very beginning of this course Steve has shown a high level of understanding of the way language functions in society and has endeavoured to augment this by applying principles of language study, constantly seeking ways to develop his knowledge. I think what impressed us most of all about Steve is his independent and enquiring mind. His investigation was both original and ambitious and he researched his topic navigating the implications of speaking English as a second language amongst football managers with flair. His original writing too was just that, and the journalistic style adopted would not look out of place in any broadsheet editorial. This resilience, commitment and the wealth of other attributes Steve has makes him a worthy recipient of this award.

Media Studies

Freya Kitson

Freya has always had a natural talent and flair in Media Studies - both in the written aspect of the subject and the practical element. Freya joined the course at a time where there was much upheaval in the subject area, changing to Applied A Level and making the course solely Coursework rather than split between practical and exam. However, her attitude never wavered. It didn't matter how she was assessed, she would still ensure that everything was done to the best standard possible.

It did help that I taught Freya for nearly 4 years in other subjects before picking her Media class at A Level and throughout that time Freya has always shown tremendous resolve and commitment to complete her studies with excellent grades. Her blog was first class, easy to navigate and always detailed enough to get the top marks.

She has chosen to do the same course I did at University at the very same institution, where I know she will be in safe hands and excel in all areas. I'm sure the American Year will be the one thing she can't wait for, but until then - good luck in the future, and continue to do me and the rest of your teachers proud.

Well done Freya.

Film Studies Award

Jess Watson

Jess had a difficult start in Film Studies as she never had confidence in her work at AS Level. She always had the ability, but she never believed in herself. Both myself and Mrs Scott knew she was capable of great things in the subject and after much encouragement, Jess found her confidence after initially thinking that she would call it a day at Drifffield Sixth Form during last summer.

I am delighted to say this year Jess's work improved dramatically. For both the small scale research project and her screenplay, she showed the natural talent and ability we knew she had and produced a superb coursework folder. Her script in particular ended up being based on her excellent Year 12 Media work.

It is not just in her coursework portfolio that Jess has excelled this year. She took A Level Media as an AS and has worked by herself on her General Studies preparation with occasional guidance from myself. This shows the drive she has and both I and Mrs Scott couldn't be more proud of her.

Well done, Jess - and good luck.

Ann Hodgson Award for Drama

Charlotte Hutchinson

Charlotte is an outstanding student who shows real skill and talent for producing high quality performance work whatever the genre. She is a versatile performer and is able to immerse herself in any role that comes her way, whether this is showing exceptional comic timing or portraying pure despair through abstract theatre.

She has also been a valuable member of the school productions and performed in several shows. This commitment has recently been rewarded through Charlotte gaining the principle role of Mrs Wilkinson in Billy Elliot. She was outstanding in this challenging and entertaining role, showing off her singing, acting and dancing skills.

Her attendance and punctuality has been excellent throughout and she has been very keen to participate practically in every aspect of Dance and Drama throughout her time at the school. Some of Charlotte's main skills are her resilience and hard work; she will go above and beyond to ensure her work is at an exceptional level. Her perfectionism and contentious attitude, alongside her warm personality and hungry desire to learn more will make her an ideal candidate for developing at Drama school level.

Charlotte's enthusiasm is evident within her studies and during her AS year she achieved an A grade which was gained through hard work and dedication. We are confident that Charlotte will go on to have a very successful career in the arts, whether this is in musical theatre or acting. She has the stand out qualities to succeed at drama school. Charlotte is a worthy winner of this award and we wish her the best of luck in the future.

Margaret Spirit Award for Music

(two prizes)

Will Hammond and Dawn Farmer

Will and Dawn have both participated in many musical activities from the school production to supporting GCSE performances. It is not possible to give only one award as they have both contributed significantly to the department. They both have achieved so much in their musical journey at Driffield School achieving instrumental exams up to grade 8 diploma level.

They have worked hard and deserve recognition of their musical achievements in performance.

Mathematics Award

Charis Palmer-Howe

When asked about choosing someone who has excelled since their foray into sixth form, I deliberated as there were a lot of strong candidates out there.

I chose Charis Palmer-Howe, based on a very sound premise - determination. Charis has developed from a quiet, intelligent, diligent student, to a student that shows great motivation in tackling questions involving difficult subject matter and being able to communicate her reasoning to her friends and peers.

She is capable of high reasoning self-evaluation and this allows her to overcome difficulties now and also in future events.

Charis is an extremely warm and pleasant person, but don't be fooled, she has a steely determination that will allow her to achieve almost anything in life she wishes to do. In my humble opinion Charis is a worthy recipient of this award.

Further Mathematics Awards

We chose both these students in order to recognise their outstanding dedication to all of their mathematical studies. Choosing to follow maths and further maths is a challenging but rewarding course and both these students have risen to the level of difficulty admirably.

We could not say that we missed them when they left for study leave as we still saw both of them almost every day with a list of questions and queries. They were so used to coming and working with us they had their own work spaces set up in the office.

Alistair Jacques

Alistair is an extremely dedicated mathematician. He is not satisfied with just getting the right answer and will always strive to fully understand the intricate detail required in any questions. If there are multiple ways to tackle a problem Alistair will want to understand them all, but generally choose and stick with his preferred method.

Alistair seem to show an aptitude for the modules that most students struggle with greatly - such as interpreting statistics. We are not sure what this says about his personality!

Isobel Beesley

Izzie was not content with just studying maths and further maths, she also chose to follow the STEP maths course requiring a lot of self-study. It was always a dreaded moment when she would pop up to the office to ask for help before admitting it was a STEP question. These questions required deep understanding of a full range of topics and sometimes involved the full maths team taking them away to think about the best way to attempt a solution.

She has been a fantastic member of her maths and further maths classes & much as we don't like to admit it, we will miss the little tap at the door followed by, "are you free? I've got a list of questions to go over."

Biology Awards

Jenny Rumble

I don't use this word very often to describe a student but Jenny is brave. She will readily admit that the past two years have been a real challenge for her but she has never once shied away from it. She faces every step with a positive attitude and this has culminated in her decision to move to Australia for a year to become an au pair. Initially I know she felt as though she was the one taking the easy option compared to those going straight to University, but I told her it is she that had made the difficult and brave decision. It has been such a pleasure to have such a mature and lovely young lady in my biology group and in my form. Jenny is a genuinely good and honest person that will always do her utmost to fulfil her potential. She has been a positive role model and friend to others in the group, her attitude exemplifies what we want to see in our A-level students. She has supported and often challenged others, including me, when approaching difficult concepts.

This term has been especially difficult for Jenny with the changes at home, yet it has proven to be another example of her maturity and organisation that she has coped and continued to strive for success.

I have absolutely no doubt that Jenny will go on to succeed academically and in life and I wish her every happiness for this next exciting year whatever the future holds after that.

Tom Thompson

Tom has pursued his study of biology with the same drive and determination that he approaches his life. He is relentless in his quest for knowledge and how this applies to other subjects. He demonstrates a work ethic like no other student I have taught but it is passion for his subject that stands him apart and why we chose him for this award. To witness his enthusiasm in lessons and be part of developing his understanding was a great pleasure. When he had his university open days and interviews and I saw him so inspired about being able to continue his studies, it reminded me why I love teaching A-level and what a privilege it is being part of preparing him for the next great phase of his life.

Tom is a gentleman; I would hope that my children grow up to have the manners and decency that Tom displays on a daily basis.

I know that he is going to relish life at University and no doubt will be successful, the progress he has made throughout his GCSE's and A-levels is astounding and he should be held up as an example to students that no matter your starting point, with the right attitude you can achieve.

Chemistry Award

Charis Palmer-Howe

Throughout the course Charis has always impressed. She is a conscientious student who always works to a high standard. She achieved a good grade in her AS exam and we are hopeful that she will go on to achieve even better in her A level exam. Charis has been a pleasure to teach, she is especially tolerant of the rather male dominated group! Charis should believe in herself and her abilities as she moves into higher education.

Physics Award

Rebecca Tulloch

From the moment Rebecca walked into our Y12 class two years ago, we knew she was a natural physicist. We knew that she was diligent, hard-working, and willing to ask questions. And we knew that she would do very, very well.

What we didn't know was that she would turn into one of the best young physicists that I have ever taught, in any age group, nor that we would get to the stage where I would ask her to check my working, rather than the other way round!

It has been an absolute pleasure to teach Rebecca over the last two years, and I sincerely believe that she will continue to excel throughout her next three years at University. Well done Rebecca!

Applied Science Awards

Tong Li

Tong is an outstanding student who never fails to produce work of the highest standard. She is conscientious and a pleasure to share a classroom with. Tong has a wonderfully positive attitude to life and she always impresses us with her work ethic, reliability and dedication. Tong has developed excellent practical skills and has shown a high level of independence in her work. Tong willingly supports her fellow learners and has great communication skills. We have no doubt that these skills and qualities will enable her to have a successful future. We wish you good luck!

Catherine Smith

Catherine has developed into an excellent student throughout the two year course. She is a conscientious student who always meets deadlines and can be relied upon to present her work in a rainbow of colours! Catherine's work is always of the highest standard. Catherine has been a delightful member of the group; she has always done her utmost to support her fellow students and works well in group situations. She has developed confidence in her practical work and learned many new skills. She will undoubtedly go on to an exciting future. It has been a pleasure working with her!

Russell Appleby Awards for PE and Games

Danny Young

Danny has proved himself to be an outstanding A level student who has grown into an amiable and well respected young man. He has a cheerful but focused approach to the lesson and is popular with his peers. As a student he followed a successful GCSE course with a tough start to AS level studies. The independent research and wider reading took time to embed itself in Danny's study techniques but he eventually progressed into a student who has matured with written and oral work and dedicated himself to reach his own personal levels of excellence. This determined approach has paid dividends with grades continually improving. Away from the classroom Danny has represented the school in a number of sports with football being his main area of strength. He has furthered this when gaining qualifications in refereeing. He has supported the school on many occasions by officiating at school matches across the age ranges. A fine young man who deserves success in the future and we wish him all the best.

RE Award

Beth Harris

Beth has been a role model student. She has gone against the grain and has been extremely focussed throughout her A levels. Her attention to detail is admirable and her drive is what has made her extremely successful. Beth is a great example to demonstrate determination, where if things don't go your way, no excuses are made and you do what's needed to achieve success and your potential. A student we can all learn from.

Sociology Award

Jenny Rumble

'Miss Rumble' as she is known in Sociology has grown into an excellent sociologist and has shown that she has an enquiring mind which has been evident in the way that she has participated in all class discussions. She is always willing to make a contribution to the class discussions and has an excellent ability to recall factual information. Jenny has a very good ability to analyse sociological theory which demonstrates that she uses a logical approach to come to independent conclusions. She is a determined, focussed, self-motivated and hardworking student. Once Jenny makes a decision she is fully committed and determined to do whatever she needs to achieve it. Her personality and smile never fails to light up my day and I will miss her terribly.

During her A Levels Jenny has displayed a high level of motivation in her studies where learning in the classroom has been backed up by independent learning. She always produces work to the best standard possible, meets all deadlines and shows a real drive to do well in her studies. Her attendance and punctuality has been excellent and she can always be relied upon her others in the class.

I wish Jenny all the best in her exciting adventure in Australia and congratulations on the Sociology award. You thoroughly deserve it.

Travel Award

Alice Oakley

Alice has shown a very keen interest in Travel and Tourism from the very start of Year 12, this may be due to its naturally close links with Geography which is another subject Alice has studied. Alice also took part in the successful World Challenge expedition to Nepal which I believe has furthered her interest in the wider subject and the Travel and Tourism industry. Alice consequently had a very rewarding first year in which she worked extremely hard, even though the course is less practical, she still persisted without any complaints.

In Year 13 Alice flourished during both the event management and guided tour aspects of the course. She was very organised throughout and showed a natural balance between both independent work and team work by always being proactive while not dominating. When on the trip in London, Alice remained very reliable, responsible and trustworthy as well as always retaining a very calm head when difficult decisions had to be made.

During the entire course, Alice has been a very well respected member of the Travel and Tourism team by both her peers and her staff. Overall Alice is an extremely hard working individual who deserves to succeed in everything she does. Well done Alice!

Food Technology Award

Charlotte Slater

Charlotte has worked confidently demonstrating that she can give perceptive, detailed and knowledgeable responses to the wide range of topics included in the specification. Throughout Year 13 Charlotte has maintained a conscientious approach to work with a definite focus on meeting the deadlines for Coursework.

We wish Charlotte every success for the future and hope that she fulfils her ambitions to study for an English degree.

We will defiantly miss her fashion flair and help keeping up to date with current trends

Product Design Award

Will Syson

Will is a one of a kind student, yes he works hard, he actually reacts and responds to feedback, takes advice well and always tries to improve both himself and his work etc. etc. Blah blah blah.

But what really sets Will apart is that he is a time traveller!

When he walks into the workshop, with his 'Elvis like' hair bobbing about with each step, quite possibly wearing shorts too even though it might be the middle of December, his first priority is to unplug the teacher's computer from the speakers and plug his phone in allowing us to be transported, whether we like it or not, as far back as seven decades by listening to a range of 50's and 60's music. Even Will's year 13 project is a retro themed, transportable record player...or as we like to know it 'a massive box with wheels'.

I really do think Will is from another time period, and I believe this makes him confused sometimes and would give him a valid excuse for the one time he failed to turn up to his lesson, that and the fact that he decided to take part in a chilli pepper eating contest prior to the lesson, after which I believe he became close friends with the school toilets.

All the above aside, Will is the model student not only academically but in persona too, his maturity shines through in way he tackles tasks and in the level of commitment he shows on a daily basis. Will has been a pleasure to teach and we wish him all the best for the future.

Textile Design

Molly Goodbody

Molly has worked with enthusiasm and great determination to create original garments that showcase her creativity. Her cape, which was inspired by the theme of time, features a skilfully smocked panel with a wide variety of other textile techniques. Her 'read all about it' exam piece demonstrates her mastery of free machine stitching. What has impressed us most is Molly's conscientious and organised approach to work which had meant that practical and sketchbook work is completed on time and to the best of her ability. Molly has been a delight to teach and we wish her every success in the future.

Driffield Sixth Form Awards

Meg Suggitt

There is never a day that goes past without Meg's smile lighting up the Sixth Form Centre. It has been a real pleasure to see her grow in confidence over the last two years as she has explored the future and set her course. As an individual Meg is bright, happy, articulate and focused. I know that she is highly valued and respected by both her peers and staff for her enthusiastic approach to everything and her willingness to work with others to secure the best outcomes for all. She has worked tirelessly academically, but also with the Student Union and has been a vital part of the Year 13 community. She will be missed.

Hannah Lawton

Hannah has a rare and special talent. She can strike up and maintain a conversation with anyone, in any circumstances. In this way no one is ever alone, or excluded, because Hannah will always seek to draw them in. She can see the need in others and is always moved to respond. Whilst others may turn a blind eye, or not even observe in the first place, Hannah will not only notice how others are, but will act to intervene. It is this natural empathy, openness and care that make Hannah so unique. What is even more impressive is that it is such a natural reaction that Hannah does not even realise she is doing it! She will set aside her personal benefit to support others and we have always appreciated it. We know that Hannah will have a wonderfully successful and rich future. She deserves it and will achieve it.

Rotary Club of Driffield - Award for Outstanding Contribution in the Sixth Form

Darcie Napier

The Rotary Club are a group of people who combine to bring about positive change within communities. In this respect I cannot think of a better candidate than Darcie to receive this award. Darcie is the most community minded, people driven individual that I know. She has a kind heart and a compassionate disposition which means that her default position is always to seek the benefit of others. Darcie is, to use a term coined at the London Olympics in 2012, a "Games maker". She makes things possible; she makes things happen. Not for her own benefit, but because it is necessary in order for something to take place. In this respect Darcie has been absolutely fundamental to everything that Wilberforce House, Driffield School and the Sixth Form has done and she represents what is best and brightest about the Sixth Form community as a whole. She deserves recognition for the time, effort and self that she puts into supporting others. She is a star who will be massively missed by us, but who will add huge value to wherever she goes.
